To Collaborate

1. To work jointly with others or together especially in an intellectual endeavor.
2. To cooperate with an agency with which one is not immediately connected.

When photographer Marty Knapp approached West Marin Senior Services (WMSS) and KWMR with his fundraising idea, we were intrigued – Marty would have a big sale in July and he would share the proceeds with both WMSS and KWMR! We appreciate Marty's inspired generosity. As Executive Directors of West Marin non-profits, it is critical that we continually raise funds and it is imperative that we innovate. As Executive Directors, we are also very protective of our donors, even though we can reasonably assume, in a small community like West Marin, that many of our donors are the same people.

Frankly, it has been liberating to work together, to collaborate and brainstorm about the best way to put this project together. It seems the more people you have at the table with different perspectives, the better the outcome.

While KWMR and WMSS provide many different services to the community, one area we share is disaster preparedness. KWMR gets the word out to the community in the event of a disaster, and WMSS uses this information to make sure seniors are safe. Together these invaluable agencies are a vital lifeline for vulnerable, isolated, at-risk elders still living in our community. These organizations help make up the fabric of the West Marin that we know and love.

Without WMSS or KWMR, West Marin would lack critical elements to keep our community healthy and strong. We hope that you will contribute generously to this fundraising campaign: Purchase some of Marty Knapp's wonderful photography; or send in a check – the shared proceeds will support both of our organizations!

KWMR and WMSS are collaborating on this endeavor. We are working with each other, not as rivals but as fellow community-based non-profits. We are a connected, vital part of the local fabric.

Thank you for your support and thank you, Marty Knapp, for making this possible.

For thirty years I've made it my life's work to photograph the landscape near my Point Reyes home. I feel fortunate that these artworks have now found their way onto walls all over the world. The success I've had has had as much to do with the support I've received from my community as the singular beauty of this place I've photographed. There is an extraordinary generosity of spirit, cooperation and helpfulness here. My neighbors help each other in ways rarely seen these days.

I want to give back – to express my gratitude to my community. So, we're having a benefit sale of my photography – a fundraiser to help two of my favorite community organizations: KWMR (West Marin community-supported radio) and WMSS (West Marin Senior Services), whose dedicated good work helps so many of us, daily. Proceeds will benefit both organizations. As a bonus, those of you who support these organizations by purchasing photographs will also receive generous discounts on the price.

See you soon!
